Fond 504, opis 1

- 1 Sipo reports on communist and partisan activity in Estonia. September 1941 -November 1943. 37 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0074.00001283.jpg

From RSHA (Reichssicherheits Hauptamt) to Einsatzgruppe A (September 1941)
Communist Activities in Ostland: Communism in the Estonian regions occupied as of August 1941. Additional communication from Commander, Security Police, and SD, Einsatzgruppe A to RSHA Berlin, noting that action (Aktion) was assigned to Sonderkommando A (regarding Communist activities). RSHA memo regarding the carrying out of combat against Communism in the occupied eastern territories (August 1943). Report about regional Communist Party committee directives sent to district party committees about preparing armed insurrection (in occupied areas) during 1943. German translation of plans for communist party; political activities behind the front, 1942-1943. [Russian] instructions on how to organize partisan units in the steppes. From Reich Commissioner for Ostland to commander Sipo and SD, Ostland in Riga: Communists in the Riga state organizations. 1941-1942.

- 2 German translation of the report made by the chief of the political department of the northwestern front, Commissar Ryachev, sent to the main political department of the Red Army about the organization of Soviet partisan groups, and protocol of the meeting of police chiefs chaired by Latvian police commander Schroeder on methods to be used in combatting Soviet partisans. August 1941 - July 1942. 18 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0074.00001340.jpg [Interspersed with Russian translations of earlier materials.] German translation of leaflet spelling out partisan organizational affairs; also of a report on the organization of Soviet partisan units. Material designed to inform Germans tasked with combating Russian partisans; to collect all the necessary information, the memo says "partisans are only to be arrested initially in order to interrogate them, and they are to be shot only in threatening combat situations." Discussion about who was to do what among the military and security services concerning anti-partisan actions, indicates that largest part of these actions are being carried out by local nationals, so-called Schutzmannschaften under German police leadership. 1941-1942.

- 4 Order No. 42 of the SIPO and SD commander about the fight against Soviet partisans and reports about the methods employed by Soviet partisans. 14 February - 27 April 1942. 21 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0074.00001384.jpg Transmittal of report about experiences with the operation of partisan units, to Chief, Einsatzgruppe A. Contains detailed prior history of Bolshevik, Russian and Soviet partisan movements. 1942.

- 6 Reports of the security police about the Soviet partisan operations and the capture of some of their number by the Germans. February 1942 - August 1944. 71 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0074.00001421.jpg

Report about a German army lieutenant's participation in partisan activities. Various items about partisan activities. 1942-1944.

- 7 Security police reports about Jewish participation in the partisan movement in the Baltics. September 1942 - June 1944. 60 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0074.00001495.jpg

From White Ruthenia (Minsk): Jews among partisans. Report says that their extensive involvement can be counteracted only by the speedy elimination of Jews in a given region. In that connection, all local officials are requested to reduce the number of Jews with special skills to a bare minimum and to guard them within a ghetto. Telegram reporting the destruction of a partisan unit composed of Jews, noting that others were still in the area who had previously escaped from the Bialystok ghetto during its partial evacuation (February 1943). Various reports of attacks on Jewish partisan units, and of activities by partisan units which also contained Jews. Activities of so-called White Polish bandits in Lithuania whose main task was to kill Jewish partisans. Reports about German encounters (all these reports were filed under the rubrik "Jews and Partisans" [by this time the Germans had begun the use of "bandits" to describe partisans, i.e. from "Partisanen" to "Banditen"].

- 8 Brief report about the SIPO and SD activities in the fight against partisans and paratroopers during October 1942, secret edition of the German Army general headquarters publication called "News About the Partisan War", editions 1 - 5. January - June 1942. 43 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0074.00001549.jpg

Commander, Sipo and SD, Ostland; short report about Sipo and SD activities to combat partisans and parachutists since October 1, 1942 (December 1942). Report underlines that actions were carried out exclusively and solely by Sipo and SD forces. Memo about decorations for SD command, Einsatzgruppe A of Sipo and SD, Krasnokvardeisk staff. Various official expressions of thanks to Sonderkommandos of Sipo and SD for various combat activities. From Chief, General Staff, 16th Army, expressing appreciation of work by Einsatzkommando 1B of the SD attached to his army during the eastern campaign (November 1942). Expressions of appreciation and request for continuing cooperation of SD with Army in the Petrograd region. Reports about fight against partisans. Complete historical and organizational reports about partisans, with charts, schematic drawings of a partisan camp, etc.

- 9 Order of SS police official Bach about using captured partisans as laborers in industry and agriculture. July - September 1943. 16 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0074.00001617.jpg

Treatment of partisan prisoners. Alleged Führerbefehl [Führer order, to be carried out without question], according to which captured partisans are to be treated like POWs and sent to camps where they are to be used as laborers. Directives to field to enforce this procedure (July 1943). Elaborate explanation by RFSS and Chief of German Police, chief of Anti-Partisan Units: on getting Labor Resources for the German Armaments and Food industries as a result of anti-partisan activities. Exceptions in this "preferential" treatment (see Führerbefehl, above) are to be made for partisans who are high political functionaries, political commissars, Jews, or "other particularly dangerous elements." Those, and captured parachutists, will continue to be accorded "Sonderbehandlung" [special treatment, i.e. execution]. Report listing weapons captured during anti-partisan activities. 1943.

- 10 Report by the SIPO and SD in Bialystok district about captured documents, including an abstract of Stalin's appeals to partisans, documents from the "Lenin" partisan brigade, delegations from the Polish partisan headquarters. September 1943 - July 1944. 82 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0074.00001644.jpg

Extensive field distribution of a intercepted report about Stalin's May 1943 exhortation to partisans calling for active opposition in the occupied territories (with German translation of Stalin's words). German translation of Russian call on population in the occupied territories, "Death to the Occupiers - Read and Pass On." Rest of material is a report about Soviet successes at the front (summer 1943). Various reports about partisans in Bialystok area. Additional German reports about successful anti-partisan activities (in Riga region); reports from Lithuania about partisan activities, much of which was by Polish partisan units, and joint Polish-Russian units, including many Jews. Report about Polish underground movement in Vilnius. 1943-1944.

- 11 Data about the activities of partisan brigades in Lithuania, and interrogations of Soviet citizens suspected of cooperation with the partisans in the Dno district near Leningrad. December 1943 - January 1944. 119 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0074.00001745.jpg

German reports (in Lithuanian) about partisan activities. Interrogation reports of local citizens suspected of contact with partisans. 1943-1944.

- 12 Secret edition of German Army headquarters publication called "News About the Partisan War", edition 3. July 1943. 19 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0074.00001891.jpg

More reports about partisan combat. To be distributed to all units behind the frontline. Contains organizational charts, etc., and details of cooperation between the center (Stalin), the Red Army, and partisan organizations. 1943.

- 13 Secret edition of German Army headquarters publication called "News About the Partisan War", volume 6. December 1943. 4 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0074.00001941.jpg

- 2 Instructions and correspondence of the SIPO and SD chief of Ostland with local SIPO and SD departments and with the Reichskommissar for Ostland about the prohibition of western radio broadcasts. Notes by the police in Berlin about the meeting of the representatives of the OKH, the guard police and concentration camp chief Eicke. Labor duty for Jews and the creation of special camps for this purpose. Directives of the Main SS military inspection department. 1939 - 1945. 324 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0075.00000006.jpg

[Russian listing of documents, individuals, Sipo and SD members, 1942-1944, in Estonia; list of SD schools]. Directive about prohibition of listening to foreign broadcasts, addressed to highest Reich officials and authorities directly responsible to Hitler. Deals with a previous order establishing who among officials can listen. Hitler was not satisfied with that list and issued his own orders as to who can and who cannot listen, and what the structures are (January 1942). Additional materials on listening to foreign broadcasts, including a conflict between those enforcing the anti-listening laws among the population and the security police. Memo about permission for foreign workers in Germany to listen to broadcasts from home: no restrictions of broadcasts which originate in countries occupied by Germany and whose political view are regarded as being "friendly." Various reports about enemy radio propaganda. One memo reports that various special German organizations had transmitted intentionally wrong reports to confuse the enemy. Instead, German military personnel who heard these reports were confused. March 1939, memo from high level ministerial, military, and chiefs of concentration camps meeting concerning whether Jews can perform any services in case of war. Reason for discussion was that military high command had decreed that Jews can no longer serve in the reserves, and definitely not at the front. 1939-1945.

- 6 Regulations and directives of the RSHA for counter-espionage about the creation of a special SD command called "Jersey", based in Lyon and designed to fight British agents. Telegrams and reports from various operational groups about the activities of partisans in the occupied Baltic territories. Training of experts of the RSHA for intelligence work. Organization of an agent training school in the USSR and England. Recruiting agents for the Gendarmerie. Interrogations of Soviet paratroopers. "N-referrat." 1941 - 1944. 260 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0075.00000408.jpg (SEE ALSO note about this folder on reel 204)

Index of SD activities in France and in the Soviet Union. Memo on anti-sabotage activities in army. Also, about sabotage in war-related industries, how to report, etc. Report about investigation by specially organized SD units into a Polish underground network reporting to London and its appearances in western and southwestern Europe, with list of enemy agents arrested (April 1944). Extensive report on anti-espionage agent activities on Soviet territory. Himmler message to all senior SS and police commanders, subject carelessness during telephone conversations about location and travels of high-ranking Party and state officials. 1941-1944.

- 7 Directives and instructions of Himmler and other senior police officials about the treatment of foreign workers, measures for their punishment, and reports to Riga about inviting Latvian dentists to aid German soldiers. Treatment of Jews, Poles, and Gypsies. 1941 - 1944. ca 119 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0075.00000748.jpg

Rules prescribing church services for Polish workers in Germany. Treatment of Poles in occupied eastern territories and of Poles in Germany; distinctive marking for Poles working in Germany. Treatment of Danes working in Germany (if they violate orders they are to be sent automatically to concentration camp or "work education camp"). Removal back to Holland of Dutch workers if their behavior was unsatisfactory. Sipo dealing with Italians working in Germany (September 1943); greater attention to be paid to Italians in Germany since their government capitulated. Labor details for interned Italian offices and non-coms. 1941-1944.

- 8 Orders, regulations, and correspondence of the RSHA with various security police units in Ostland about the formation and reorganization of concentration and labor camps in Pakrie, Slansi, Stutthof, Lublin, Warsaw, Nowogrodek, Riga, and other territories in the occupied east. Treatment of prisoners in these camps, measures to be taken to prevent escapes, and the evacuation of partisan sympathisers. (IVC2) 1942 - 1944. 259 pp. Folder begins on image RG-11.001M.0075.00001016.jpg

Change of work camp Plaszow near Cracow into concentration camp (June 1944). Directive about privileged or special treatment of protective custody prisoners in concentration camps. Directive RFSS and Chief, German Police that by the end of January 1945 at least 35,000 prisoners who can work are to be transferred to concentration camps. Incorporation of KZ inspectorate into SS Administrative Headquarters (May 1942). From Interior Minister, directive about "Assets of Dead Prisoners;" one category deals with Polish and Jewish prisoners, and those from the Soviet Union. Because so many women prisoners, including Germans, are dying in Auschwitz, German women prisoners are no longer to be sent there (April 1944). RSHA proclamations for Baltic states: any prisoner, even those sentenced to death, can get out if he joins the German army in the field against the Soviets (February 1944). Various messages from Einsatzgruppen about turning over captured partisan women and children to camp. From Chief, Sipo and SD, Einsatzgruppe A in Riga, about setting up a concentration camp in Latvia (October 1941). Also, expansion of police prisons in Riga area. Setting up a concentration camp for Lithuanian region because of crowding in regular prisons (February 1942); it is to hold 3-4,000 prisoners. 1942-1944.
