History of the structure of the office

In the result of the decision of German authorities, most of the territories that used to belong to the Republic of Poland before WW II, made a separate administrative entity - General Government (Generalgouvernement für die besetzten polnischen Gebiete). Remaining territories were incorporated to Third Reich and defined as the incorporated East Lands. The office of General Governor in the General Government (GG) was assumed by Hans Frank during the entire period of the war. Alongside, the central authorities included: the deputy General Governor, the Chief Officer of the General Governor's Office and the senior chief officer of SS and police. Josef Bühler was appointed a Chief Officer of the General Governor's Office, who, since 1940 had also assumed the position of the chief officer of the Government (Leiter der Regierung des Generalgouvernements). The GG consisted of such departments as: home affairs, finances, economy, justice, propaganda, science and education, labor, health care, alimentation, forestry and agriculture, construction, railroads and mail. The next administrative level belonged to the district chief officers who had borne name of governors since half 1940. There used to be four districts within GG: Krakow, Lublin, Radom and Warsaw. Since 1941, the fifth district had been added – the Galicia. The districts were divided into counties, so the next hierarchic stage was a Kreishauptmann. The police in GG used to be administered by Befehlshaber, who supervised chief officers of commands. The police included Ordnungspolizei-Orpo) and Sicherheitspolizei-Sipo and Sicherheitsdienst-S. There used to be Kripo and secret state police (Gestapo) within Sipo. Central authorities of Third Reich had a final say as for the range of activity and province. During the next years also the Ministry of Transportation and the Ministry of the Reich Mail controlled the Reich's departments of railroads and mail respectively.

In the course of war, those administrative division transformed, however there are two basic new entities that originated in the result of the incorporation to the Third Reich: (Reichsgau Wartheland or Warthegau) and the district of Gau Danzig Westpreussen. Other Polish territories were incorporated to individual German provinces. Upper Silesia, the western part of the Krakow province and Olsa Gebiet (the Cieszyn Silesia). In 1941 a change had place and the province was divided into the Upper and the Lower Silesia. On the incorporated territories the post of vice regent or super president, who chaired civic administration was introduced and was subordinated to the Ministry of Internal Affairs and Gauleiter, who used to be a chief officer of NSDAP. There, the posts of starosts and mayors (super mayors) were created. Also the offices and institutions, usually based on the SS structures, emerged. Haupttreuhandstelle Ost-HTO, set up by Hermann Göring, in September 1939, was one of them. The HTO objective was the administration of incorporated territories and management of the population's property. Since September 1939, the companies, shops and workshops had been confiscated and liquidated. Deportations of Jews and Poles to GG had been pending as well as the transports of forced labor up-country. Umwandererzentralstelle became the main institution that was responsible for deportations. The territories abandoned by deported Polish natives were taken over by the Germans, who had abandoned the territory of East Prussia taken over by Soviets on September 17, 1939.

From the very beginning of the war, the ordinance in the determination of the situation of Jews in GG has been given. The possibilities of migration was restricted, the population and its property was registered. In 1940, confiscation of Jewish property, mainly supervised by Treuhandstelle für das Generalgouvernement in Krakow, started in GG. Sending Poles and Jews to forced labor was executed through Arbeitsamt institutions. Judenrats (The Councils of Jewish Seniors) were created and the Jewish civilians were closed in ghettos. In 1942, during the Wansee conference, the representatives of the highest authorities of the Third Reich, edited the plan of so-called final solution of the Jewish issue. It was SS-Reichsführer Heinrich Himmler, who elaborated and gave the order for mass murder of Jews encoded as Aktion Reinhardt. Step by step, from the stage of indirect extermination, the Nazi authorities proceeded to the stage of Holocaust.

The History of the Collection

The collection contain original documents excluded as not belonging to any other archival collections which are in the JHI Archival holdings, as well as copies of documents held in other institutions and organizations.

The Collection has been made out in the JHI Archive, contains no protocol of delivery and acceptance; there is precise data defining the date and take-over of the materials neither.

Archival features of the collection

Name: German documents

Chronological boundries: 1939– 1944 (1904 – 1951)

Territorial boundaries: The Third Reich, The General Government

Volume: 154 units – 1.80 running meters

Physical condition of the files in percentage: in remnants or impossible to assess.

The collection contains single, genuine or copied documents.

Archival structure:

The condition of the collection does not allow for the reconstruction of its official arrangement.

Technical features:

The collection consists of loose files and journals. They mainly occur as typescripts and manuscripts, rarely as forms of multiplied documents. The entire documentation has been collected in bound paper folders.

Content of the collection

The materials included in the collection, as they survived in remnants, do not reflect the activity of the respective offices.

The first group consists of documents made out by the central authorities and institutions of the Third Reich understood as Reich and the countries occupied by it. They contain general orders or ordinances directed mainly to Jews (units 1 – 21), as well as statistics and reports describing the accomplished tasks.

The next group consists of the documents that describe the activity of regional authorities. There are the files made out by the offices of the next administrative grade, including the following territorial range: the Upper and the Lower Silesia (units 26 – 30), the General Government (units 31 – 35) and Warthegau (units 36 – 41), as well as the offices of authorities and institutions of individual local towns and cities. Most of them are ordinances concerning the execution of orders given by superior authorities and the operation correspondence. Among Die Deutsche Fluechtlig und Kontrollkommission Brest Litowsk, there are genuine applications of Jews, who wanted to get back to the territories of GG, often reinforced by the papers from the previous whereabouts as e.g.: Międzyrzec Poforski (unit 57). In the documents from Płocka, of 1939, the original form with the order to take over a Jewish enterprise was placed (unit 90), whereas in the documents of Das Finanzamt Tormersdorf from Prędocice - the hand-made sketch of the town (unit 91). In the record of land-ownership from Rzeszów (unit 98), we can find information of the mandatory take-over of Jewish estates and the abstracts of death certificates of the Registry of the Jewish Religious Community. The group of Warsaw files ends with the units containing the German propaganda materials from the Warsaw Uprising (unit 122) and the copies of testimonies of defendants and witnesses in the trials of war criminals (units 123 – 125).

Original documents can be also found in other archival units, however most of the materials are the copies of in-coming files from a/o the GKB Archive in Berlin, the State Archive in Warsaw, the Main Commission for Investigation of German Crimes in Poland, the Western Institute and the Municipal National Councils, the Office of the chief of counsel for war crimes U.S. Army and the Provincial Jewish Historical Commissions.

The further group of materials is personal documents in remnants. The documents of Jews refer to the settlement of the child care, concerning property and the consistency of marriages with the Nuremberg Law (units 130, 133, 138). Among the documents of Germans, there are the school certificates, parent-teacher correspondence notebooks (unit 140), correspondence and certificates issued by the army (unit 136) and drawings sent by children in the letters to their fathers (unit 131).

The last group of documents in the Collection contains printed propaganda materials as well as letters, forms and instructions.

Arrangement of the collection

Initial arrangement works consisting of grouping materials in described files were made when the Archive of JHI had been separated. Final works were performed in 2007.

The materials have been arranged in the subject-chronological order. The first place belongs to the materials of the superior entity, the Third Reich. This group contains ordinances, instructions, statistics, and correspondence ranging to the entire Germany together with the occupied countries. Group II includes the materials related to Silesia, the General Government and Warthegau, then the materials related to individual towns. Archival units relating to the documents of the local character are in alphabetical order. In group III there are documents of personal character, which do not refer to any town, and they have been arranged in alphabetical order as well (as per the surnames). Group IV contains propaganda materials, mostly anti-Jewish. The last group V contains prints and blank forms, as the last ones. The units bear mostly the names of the institutions that used to make out the files, in original spelling. If the author remained unknown, the title bears a broader and more general name. Less relevant materials made out in the course of activity of the German administration have been excluded from the files. While arranging the files, some of the material has been joined, some, like drafts, excluded and the metal elements removed. Finally, the materials were put into new files and received new call Nos.
