Historical note

In October 1939, the German authorities announced that in addition to the existing Polish judicial system will also operate the German courts. The German Courts (Deutsches Gericht) and Sondergericht (Special Court) were established with the ordinances of the Governor General in Feb. 19, 1940 (in Chełm, Kraków, Lublin, Radom, Rzeszów and Warsaw). The courts tried German citizens, Ethnic Germans (Volksdeutsche), Poles and Jews. In 1941 the German judiciary system in the General Government (GG) started actively participating in the implementation of the discriminatory policies and widely used terror court applying death penalty and a special criminal law especially for Poles and Jews; E.g. for all forms of resistance against the German occupation authorities; for failure to register by the officers of the Polish Army; for failure to quotas by farmers; for hiding Jews the death penalty in force since 1942 and was often carried out without the judgment of the court ad-hoc, so-called. execution on the spot; for offenses against the laws and regulations of the German occupation authorities, etc. The judges were supervised by the district governor. Appeals of the verdicts of the German Court were settled by the Higher German Court (Deutsches Obergericht) and its decisions were final. The court arbitrated the cases consistently under German civil and criminal law. The Staatsanwaltschaft bei dem Sondergericht Warschau (State Prosecutor of the Special Court Warsaw) was directly subordinate to the Department of Justice of the General Governor's Office of the Warsaw District. It conducted investigations in criminal cases and transferred them to the Sondergericht (Special Court). See also: Warsaw under Deutcher Herrschaft. The Structure of the Administration of Justice:

CONTAINER LIST

Remarks:

The collection contains the files of proceedings in criminal cases. The selection has been made on the basis of finding aid. In cases related not only to the persons of Jewish origin only Jewish names were bolded. Marking by italics means that the accused/suspected are not directly Jews however the file may contain information in the focus of the survey. The names of the Jewish origin are followed by the date of birth (if quoted). Most of the cases refer to people from Warsaw; in other cases the whereabouts are quoted.
