Scope and content: The collection contains lists of prisoners in the Miranda de Ebro Camp; 1940-1947 Miranda was the central camp in Spain for foreign prisoners. This camp was used for several kinds of prisoners. The three main categories were: international brigadiers (captured during the Civil War); male prisoners who illegally crossed the border (women were not held in military camps, but provincial prisons); and German military personnel and German collaborators interned in the so-called Campo Aleman. Some of the inmates were Jews. The photocopied lists include the name plus nationality of inmates.

**Note:* Besides the name lists, which the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum had reproduced, there are other documents at the source archives for which reproduction was prohibited. Some of those files might contain only a single document (E.g. the registration card of the camp), while others contain up to a maximum of ten documents (E.g. registration card; police report, personal correspondence; visa and embassy papers). All registration cards contain: surname, given name, place and date of birth, age, marital status, pre-war residence, profession, name of father, place of arrest and imprisonment in Spain before Miranda, registration date in Miranda. Some of files also contain a category why the prisoner has been detained, his intended destination and date of release.
