Administrative History:

The WJC was established in 1936 under the leadership of Stephen S. Wise and Nahum Goldmann. Instrumental in its founding were the American Jewish Congress (AJC), established in 1918, and the Comité des Délégations Juives (Committee of Jewish Delegations), which had been initiated by the Zionist Organization in 1919 as an ad hoc committee for the purpose of representing Jewish interests at the Paris Peace Conference. The Comité was also interested in the foundation of a permanent "worldwide Jewish organization which would be recognized by Jews and non-Jews alike as the Jewish representative body for the problems of the Diaspora."

As the situation for Jews in Europe steadily worsened during the 1930s, the need for a representative body to support Jewish interests became evident. The First Preparatory World Jewish Conference, met in Geneva in August 1932. After two more preparatory conferences, in 1933 and 1934, the First Plenary Assembly formally established the World Jewish Congress in August 1936. The purpose of the new organization was to unify Jews and strengthen Jewish political influence in order to assure the survival of the Jewish people, in part through the creation of a Jewish state.

Even before the 1936 Plenary, the Preparatory Committee, often represented by Nahum Goldmann, began addressing Jewish problems in Europe. It established contacts with governments and the League of Nations, led an economic boycott against Germany, organized rescue and relief efforts for Jews under Nazi rule, and investigated and documented the condition of Jews in Europe.

Once the WJC was founded, with its headquarters in Paris and another office in Geneva, its main activities continued that focus on the situation of European Jews. Among the WJC's activities were efforts concerning Jewish rights, anti-Semitism, rescue efforts, and immediate political and economic relief. The WJC also concentrated on security for Jewish refugees and victims of the war. It planned for post-war activities as well, including indemnification and reparations claims against Germany, as well as the punishment of war crimes and crimes against humanity.

With the outbreak of war in September 1939, the Paris office moved to Geneva to facilitate communication with Jewish communities in Europe. Then, in the summer of 1940, with the surrounding countries under Axis control, the headquarters of the WJC were moved to New York to share office space with the American Jewish Congress while a special office was set up in London.

At the Second Plenary Assembly in 1948, these changes were formalized by the splitting of the Executive Committee of the WJC between New York, London, and Israel. The New York office continued as a leading office for global, as well as Western Hemispheric, activities. The Political Department was split between the London and New York offices, and the Culture Department was headquartered in London, with a branch office in New York. In 1960, the main office of the Organization Department was moved from New York to Geneva.

At the end of the war, the emphasis of the WJC's activities shifted to rebuilding European Jewish communities. This involved assisting displaced persons and holocaust survivors, advocating restitution and reparations from Germany, and assisting in the prosecution of war crimes. Another focus was the WJC's involvement in the creation of the State of Israel and efforts to prevent a future Holocaust.

Many of these activities continued into the 1980s. Work for reparations claims for Holocaust survivors continued into the 1970s and was revived in the early 1990s. As the WJC adjusted its activities to meet changing needs various departments were created or disbanded. Political, legal, organizational, and research departments were created around 1936 in the European offices, and some of the same personnel who worked in these offices immigrated to the United States to work in similar departments when the WJC moved to New York during the war. As relief work decreased late in the 1940s, the Relief and Rehabilitation Department was discontinued, and its functions transferred to the Relief Desk of the Political Department.

Scope and Content:

The collection contains information on a number of topics divided by country, location, or organization. Major topics include the WJC's involvement in the post-war reconstruction of Jewish communities, anti-Semitism, Jewish refugees, post-war restitution, and Zionism.

It is divided into four subseries.

The first is a set of alphabetical files covering the period from 1919-1981, although concentrated on the period running from the immediate aftermath of the Second World War through the 1960s. Comprising well over 90% of the collection, this subseries consists primarily of files on Jewish issues in various countries or regions as well as material concerning major Jewish organizations.

The second subseries consists of the international files of Monty Jacobs who served as Press Director and Executive Director in the 1950s and 1960s. This small group of records covers primarily the latter decade with subjects similar to the first series.

The third subseries, which is also small, contains publications from the period 1930-1974 that were maintained apart from the other alphabetical files. These are also from countries, regions, and organizations, including some of the same ones as in the first subseries from which they were apparently taken. It should be noted however that many of the publications files remain scattered among the subjects of the first subseries.

The fourth, and second largest series, is another set of alphabetical files containing correspondence and clippings, and covers the period from 1949-1981 although primarily after 1952. Like the third series, it covers similar subjects to the first series, in which files containing clippings on other subjects can be found.

Some files that are listed on finding aid for this collection at the American Jewish Archive in Cincinnati are not present on this microfilm copy. These include:

Box H-353	Folders 24-31 (microfilm reel 362)
Box H-354	Folder 1-11 (microfilm reel 363)
Box H-356	Folders 2-31 (microfilm reel 364)

Please contact the source repository for further information on how to access these folders.

System of Arrangement:

Within each of the four subseries material is arranged alphabetically by subject. Subjects typically represent a country, region, or organization. For larger subjects arrangements may include various levels of sub-categories in a hierarchy approximately consisting of Country/Region>Personal Name>Organization>Topic>Date. Not all of these elements appear in every subject description and some may occur more than once in a description. Within each file, material is arranged chronologically.
