Administrative history

The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration (UNRRA) was an international relief agency, largely dominated by the United States but representing 44 nations. Founded in 1943, it became part of the United Nations in 1945, and it largely shut down operations in 1947. Its purpose was to "plan, coordinate, administer or arrange for the administration of measures for the relief of victims of war in any area under the control of any of the United Nations through the provision of food, fuel, clothing, shelter and other basic necessities, medical and other essential services". Its staff of civil servants included 12,000 people, with headquarters in New York. Funding came from many nations, and totaled $3.7 billion, of which the United States contributed $2.7 billion; Britain $625 million and Canada $139 million. The Administration of UNRRA at the peak of operations in mid-1946 included five types of offices and missions with a staff totaling nearly 25,000: The Headquarters Office in Washington, The European Regional Office (London), the Twenty-nine servicing offices and missions (2 area offices in Cairo and Sydney; 10 liaison offices and missions in Belgium, Denmark, France, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Trieste; 12 procurement offices in Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, Cuba, India, Mexico, South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, Turkey, Uruguay, Venezuela; 6 offices for procurement of surplus military supplies in Caserta, Rome, Honolulu, Manila, New Delhi, Paris, Shanghai), the sixteen missions to receiving countries (Albania, Austria, Byelorussia, China, Czechoslovakia, the Dodecanese Islands, Ethiopia, Finland, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Korea, the Philippines, Poland, Ukraine, Yugoslavia), and the Displaced Persons Operations in Germany.

UNRRA cooperated closely with dozens of volunteer charitable organizations, who sent hundreds of their own agencies to work alongside UNRRA. In operation only three years, the agency distributed about $4 billion worth of goods, food, medicine, tools, and farm implements at a time of severe global shortages and worldwide transportation difficulties. The recipient nations had been especially hard hit by starvation, dislocation, and political chaos. It played a major role in helping Displaced Persons return to their home countries in Europe in 1945-46. Its UN functions were transferred to several UN agencies, including the International Refugee Organization and the World Health Organization. As an American relief agency, it was largely replaced by the Marshall Plan, which began operations in 1948.

The Historian's Office originated in the appointment, on 6 September 1943, of Dr. Grace Fox as Historian of the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations. Her functions were primarily to prepare chronological account of the development, origin, authorization and administrative structure and to keep a library of such records as may be of historical value at a later date. Dr. Fox moved to UNRRA on 1 January 1944, and the Historian's Office was made a part of the Reports Section of the Secretariat. It later became a separate Section in the Secretariat, and on 16

December 1946, was made a staff office responsible to the Director General. Meanwhile, on 1 September 1946, Dr. George Woodbridge had been appointed Chief Archivist and Historian, with Dr. Fox remaining as his Deputy as Headquarters Historian. The chief function of the Historian's Office was to prepare the official history of UNRRA, which was later published (Woodbridge, George, and others: "UNRRA, The History of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration", Columbia University Press, New York, 1950, 3 vol.). The final writing was done at Headquarters by a small staff of historians under Dr. Woodbridge's direction, but the preliminary collection of material extended over several years and utilized the services of many officials in all parts of the organization. Historians were appointed in the European Regional Office and in several missions, while in others the responsibility for compiling historical materials was assigned to records or document officers or other officials.

A most important step in preparing the official history was the writing of a series of monographs on the work of individual administrative units. Written sometimes by the historians but generally by the executive or operating officials most familiar with particular subjects, these monographs were a basic source of information for the Historian's Office.

The authors were encouraged to write freely and frankly, under assurance that their personal views were considered of great value even where, for a reason or another, they did not coincide with the official position of UNRRA. While the official historians leaned heavily on these monographs, they naturally include a great deal of material that did not appear in the published History. Thus they constitute a most useful source of nearly all aspects of the work of UNRRA. It must be emphasized however that the monographs themselves were not intended for publication, and that they must be taken only as subjective, personal accounts of their authors, and not as official reports.

It was recognized that, in addition to preparing the official history, the Historian's Office should necessarily have the collateral function of collecting and assisting in the creation and preservation of records and documents of historical significance. An attempt was made to compile a historical file for this purpose, and card indexes of important correspondence and memoranda were maintained. Historians often attended staff meetings and policy questions as observers, and they conducted and recorded special interviews with high-ranking officials to secure historical material.

In the early months of 1944, the Historian was briefly in charge of the organization central's files, and the Historian's Office continued its efforts to encourage the establishment and maintenance of systematic and complete files throughout the organization. As archivist, the Chief Historian had responsibility for determining the classification and necessary disposal of field records with a view to 'historical records requirements. Maintenance of the Headquarters central files early became the responsibility of the Bureau of Administration, however, and on 4 April 1947, Mr. Arthur A. Leavitt was appointed Archivist for the purpose of planning and organizing the collection, appraisal, and weeding of all UNRRA records. On 16 October 1947, he became Chief of a Records and Archives Branch and Mr. Woodbridge's title was changed to Chief Historian. The Office of Historian continued until the UNRRA liquidation period, and on 1 September 1948 the remaining staff was transferred to the United Nations.

The history was completed and published under the administrative supervision of the United Nations, and the staff was terminated by the end of 1949.
