INTRODUCTION

The Central Archives for the History of the Jewish People have about 260 files recording partially Jewish life across the country of Brazil. Alongside the geographic diversity of the collection, the documents cover the period of modern Jewish settlement in Brazil from the late 19th Century to the 1970s. There are more documents beginning in the 1930s, as a result of the arrival of European Jewish refugees in Brazil, but the bulk of the records cover the period from 1950 to 1977.

Even though the collection does not contain continuous series of documents, it reflects the full-scale installation of Jewish life in Brazil, as evidenced through the establishment of local organizations as well as the relationships forged with national and international institutions. The collection details many important aspects of Jewish life in Brazil, such as minutes, statutes and financial documents from various Jewish communities, mainly in Belem. Much of the collection includes documents from Jewish schools.

The documents are for the most part written in Portuguese, but also in other languages, like: Yiddish, Hebrew, Spanish and English. The index of the material below is presented according to the size and significance of the varying community files.
