

Michael Diamond discusses the death of his parents in Auschwitz; his liberation from Bergen-Belsen; living with Russian soldiers in Wiperv, Germany; returning home to Bratislava, Czechoslovakia; living with his sister in Prague; working in a small store in Slovakia; meeting his wife and getting married; the rise of Communism; traveling to Israel; daily life in Israel; immigrating to the United States; living in New York; becoming an American citizen; his views on contemporary genocide; religion; and his feelings on the McCarthy era.